FUJI WOMEN'S UNIVERSITY

FACULTY OF HUMANITIES

Department of English Language and Culture

- Develop practical English linguistic competence essential for effective communication with others in this globalized world
- Study linguistics, literature or film from English speaking countries in either Japanese or English. Classes conducted in English are taught in EMI (English as a Medium of Instruction) or CLIL (Content and Language Integrated Learning) classroom environments

Department of Japanese Language and Literature

- Develop a specialized knowledge of Japanese literature and the Japanese language (including a focus on linguistics) from ancient to modern times as a means of exploring the nature of human beings and culture
- Cultivate a deep understanding of Japanese culture through the study of literature (from classical to modern), calligraphy, film, and pop culture (including manga and anime)

Department of Arts and Sciences

- Develop a broad-based understanding of key issues in this globalized world through the study of History, International Relations, Intercultural Communication, Law, Philosophy and Psychology

FACULTY OF WELL-BEING STUDIES

Department of Regional Well-being

- Develop a comprehensive understanding of life science, data science, and project management
- Cultivate a rich and broad-based knowledge of Quality of Life (QOL) studies, and how to apply this knowledge to solving various issues affecting individuals and communities today

Department of Food Environment

- Develop a well-balanced understanding of the relationship between food and the social environment with a particular focus on health
- Build practical knowledge and skills to contribute to people's well-being through food and nutrition based on the Japanese curriculum for training registered dietitians

Department of Educational Well-being for Children

- Build a comprehensive understanding of child development from infancy to adolescence. Explore the continuity of developmental stages, examine the various environmental factors influencing children, and investigate effective methods of collaboration among relevant institutions
- Develop a deep knowledge of Japan's educational system and pedagogical philosophies while acquiring practical skills for supporting children's learning and daily activities

WHO ARE WE ?

Fuji Women's University, which consists of two campuses located in Sapporo, Japan, is a Catholic university that was founded in 1961 with a mission to empower women through high-quality education and holistic development. The university originated from Fuji Girls' High School, established in 1925, and still today our university mission statement reflects our deep-rooted commitment to women's education.

Over the decades, Fuji Women's University has become a beacon of women's empowerment, emphasizing academic excellence, personal growth, and societal contribution. Our curriculum spans various disciplines, including humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences, and provides a well-rounded education that prepares women for diverse professional fields.

The university fosters a supportive environment that encourages critical thinking, creativity, and leadership. Through rigorous academic programs and extracurricular activities, students are equipped with the skills and confidence needed to thrive in a global society. Notable initiatives include partnerships with international institutions, and promoting cross-cultural exchanges and global perspectives.
